Two Bales, Each Weighing 200 Pounds, Strike Men

Two Container Corporation of America laborers were in Berger hospital Friday suffering probable internal injuries as a result of a straw fall Thursday afternoon.

Injured are Van Smith, 35, Walnut street, and Homer Rhoades, 33, York street.

The injuries of both men are painful, but X-ray pictures have not been taken yet to determine whether there are any bones broken. Both complain of chest and back pains.

Ankrom Escapes Unhurt
Emmitt Ankrom, York street, working with the injured pair, escaped a like fate when he leaped to safety as six heavy bales fell between 15 and 20 feet off the top of a rick they were "cutting down".

The men standing on the rick about six bales off the ground. It believed the rick was being cut down too steep. All the bales were water-soaked and much heavier than usual. Strawboard officials declared they weighed about 200 pounds each.

Two of the bales struck Smith and Rhoades.

In addition to possible injuries both men suffered from shock. Smith has been employed at the Container Corporation since March 27, 1934; Rhoades since Aug. 1, 1933.

The injured men were taken to Berger hospital in the Albaugh Co. ambulance.

ELEVENTH STATE DISTRICT INTACT UNDER NEW BILL

The Eleventh Ohio congressional district would remain intact under the amended bill of Rep. George J. Harter, Summit county Democrat, scheduled for final consideration in the house of representatives next week.

The district, as at present, lists Pickaway, Ross, Fairfield, Hocking and Perry counties.

The Harter bill, recommended by the house federal relations committee, of which Clark Hunsicker, Pickaway county representative is a member, would create 24 congressional districts, four of which would be in Cuyahoga county. Election of the present two congressmen-at-large would be eliminated by the bill.

COMPROMISE FOR SUPREME COURT REVISION SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(UP)—The administration pressed its efforts to rally support for President Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the Supreme Court today while the search for a compromise pleasing to all sides continued.

Among the half dozen compromises advanced, the most widely discussed was a resolution by Sens. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., and Homer T. Bone, D. Wash., calling for a constitutional amendment which, under certain conditions, would permit congress to override Supreme Court invalidation of acts of congress.

Even that proposal, however, appeared unlikely to win wide support unless administration leaders withdraw opposition to any compromise. Many of the so-called conservative opponents of the president's plan also opposed the Wheeler-Bone proposal.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 19.—(UP)—A federal court jury today returned a split verdict in the trial of five election officials and workers charged with conspiring to commit ballot fraud in the Nov. 3 election.

John H. Drummond, Democratic precinct captain, and Edson M. Walker, Democratic judge, were found guilty. The jury was unable to agree on the guilt or innocence of the three other defendants.

WAR GAMES ON PACIFIC COAST END IN TRAGEDY

Several Other Injured Men Feared Dying in San Pedro Hospital

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Feb. 19.—(UP)—A sweeping naval investigation into the explosion aboard the old demilitarized battleship, the Wyoming, that killed seven marines and wounded 10 began today. It was believed that some of the men hurt critically would die.

Admiral Arthur J. Hophorn, commander-in-chief of the fleet, ordered an inquest for today and commanded a board of inquiry to begin an investigation Saturday.

It was the second serious accident aboard naval vessels off the San Clemente Island training grounds within seven months, and the fifth within a year on the Pacific.

1,300 Men on Dreadnaught
Thirteen hundred men were aboard the old dreadnaught yesterday when a charge of powder in a five inch gun exploded prematurely, sending torn steel and iron fragments into its crew. Four men were killed outright, two died within a few minutes, and the 11 were burned and maimed.

Captain C. N. Hinkamp, commander of the Wyoming, raced his ship into San Pedro Harbor and transferred the wounded and dead to the hospital ship, the Relief. On his quarter deck, plainly showing the shock and strain of the tragedy, he said—

"It was a terrible accident. One of the five inch guns, the after gun on the main deck, starboard side, back-fired."

The Wyoming was stripped of her 14 inch guns mounted in turrets under the Washington naval treaty, thus "demilitarizing" her. She still carries her secondary batteries of 12 and 5 inch guns, the latter mounted in casemates, small gun runs projecting from the hull just below the main deck.

1,000 Marines Aboard

In addition to its regular navy crew, she carried 1,000 marines from the Quantico, Va., marine barracks.

Lutz Ashbrook Sailor On Warship Wyoming

Family Believes Youth Unharmed in Fatal Accident; Several Circleville Boys Take Part in 'Games'

Fred Lutz Ashbrook, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Ashbrook, of near Yellowbud, is a sailor on the battleship Wyoming on which a five-inch gun exploded Thursday killing seven men and injuring 10. Mr. Ashbrook said his son was assigned to the battleship last July 5. He joined the navy in March, 1936. In recent letters Fred had informed his parents the ship was to take part in fleet maneuvers at San Clemente Island about sixty miles offshore from San Pedro, Calif.

The parents have received no word from their son since the explosion but they believe he was unharmed. Mr. Ashbrook said he believed his son was the only sailor from this district on the Wyoming.

Other Youths Safe
Robert and Roderick Watts, twin sons of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Watts, E. Main street, are on the battleship Tennessee. Dr. Watts said letters had been received from the boys this week but no mention had been made of the maneuvers. They are stationed near San Pedro. Dr. Watts said the Tennessee was expected to go into dry dock about the first of March.

Robert E. Fricke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fricke, 525 E. Mound street, is on the U. S. S. Colorado which took part in the maneuvers. He is a first class seaman and is stationed at San Pedro.

The U. S. S. Marblehead on which Terry Hitchcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hitchcock, 349 E. Union street, is stationed, took part in the maneuvers. It is to leave Saturday for Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Hitchcock informed his parents about the maneuvers.

Raymond Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill, N. Court street, is on the U. S. S. Louisville. He has been stationed in the Hawaiian Islands. His parents do not believe this ship took part in the maneuvers.

The insurgents alleged that the revolt occurred when the volunteers' request to be sent back to their own country was refused.

A dispatch from Dijon, France, quoted Rene Fedrizzi, 24, a French volunteer in the international brigade, as saying after his return from service in Spain that the international brigades were reduced from 60,000 men to 20,000 as the result of casualties, desertions and refusals to renew agreements to fight.

Ferguson Says Hearings May Be Held in His Inquiry

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—(UP)—Members of the legislature were asked today by Governor Davey to pass a bill appropriating $10,000,000 to the state liquor department "with no strings attached."

Members of the senate finance committee, now considering the bill, were called into the governor's office and asked to pass the measure "without amendment," it was learned.

Previously, the committee had amended the bill to reduce the two-year appropriation to $2,500,000 for six months, and to strike out a provision giving the finance director control over liquor department purchases.

Amendments Studied

After the conference in the governor's office, Sen. Emerson Campbell, D., Belmont, chairman of the committee, called a meeting to reconsider the amendments.

Sen. V. H. Metcalf, only Republican member of the committee, accused the governor of attempting to "jam the bill down our throats."

"If the governor and Ray Allison, finance director) are going to run this committee and this legislature, we might as well pack up and go home," Metcalf said.

"These amendments were placed in the bill by the committee in regular, legal fashion. Now the governor has decided he wants the whole $10,000,000 with no strings (Continued on Page Eight)

WPA NEEDS NEW LOCAL PROJECTS

Courtright Warns Many Men May Lose Jobs Unless Work is Provided

Unless more projects are submitted to the local WPA office in the near future heavy reductions in the payroll will be necessary, Vattier Courtright, field engineer, announced Friday.

He said he had appealed to the city, county and trustees to submit projects. At the present time there are about 15 in operation furnishing employment to 360 men.

Most of these projects will be completed during the next two or three months. There are not sufficient new projects to absorb the workers. The sidewalk project will be resumed as soon as weather conditions permit, he explained, but many more are needed from the various subdivisions.

Under present WPA regulations the sponsors of projects are required to pay more than 20 per cent of the entire cost of the project.

THREE YOUTHS FACING RETURN TO COUNTY JAIL

Three youths of the Clarksburg vicinity are being held in Ross county for Pickaway county authorities on charges of stealing corn.

The youths are Donald, 19, and Ross Draise, 14, and Vesper Daniels, 19. The youths, Ross county officials said, were first arrested for investigation in the theft of corn from Earl Metzger of near Clarksburg. Later it was learned they had taken no corn from the Metzger place but obtained sacks at his crib and took corn from a crib belonging to Arthur Mace.

Mr. Mace is a resident of Ross county but the crib from which the corn was taken is in Pickaway county so a transfer of the case was arranged.

WAUKEGAN, ILL. FANSTEEL PLANT SCENE OF RIOT

100 Men Throw Tungsten, Heavy Weights, Shatter Factory Windows

MORE TEAR GAS SOUGHT

Circuit Judge's Order to Oust Men Brings Fight

BULLETIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(UP)—Harry Scheck, U. S. department of labor conciliator, said today that he would go to Waukegan, where sheriff's deputies were battling metal workers at the Fansteel plant.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 19.—(UP)—A force of 140 sheriff's deputies failed in a two hour siege to dislodge more than 100 sit-down strikers from two plants of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation today but a new attack was planned.

Hundreds of tear gas bombs were exploded inside the two buildings but the strikers mopped their streaming eyes and held off the attack by hurling bottles of tungsten and tantalum valued at $500 each, fragments of molybdenum, and heavy steel weights.

"We're sending for more gas from Chicago," Chief Deputy Sheriff Tom Kennedy announced. "We're trying to get some knock-out gas. If we can get that to them they'll fold up and we can lead them out by the ear lobes."

Lull About 9 a. m.
There was a lull in the fighting shortly before 9 a. m. The strikers and officers had been battling since 6:40 a. m. Sheriff L. A. Doolittle strode up to a plant window at 6:30 and read a court order calling for arrest of every one of the strikers, members of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a Committee for Industrial Organization unit.

"Anybody who wants to come out peacefully come out now," the sheriff shouted.

"We're standing on our rights," replied Carl Swanson, secretary of local No. 44 of the union, which called the strike demanding union recognition and collective bargaining.

Two policemen then battered in the door of plant No. 5 and began pouring in tear gas projectiles. Many policemen and special deputies were cut and bruised by flying missiles.

The sit-downers demanded recognition of the union and the right to bargain collectively. A company spokesman charged that the strike was called merely to injure the company's business.

The attack was concentrated first on three-story building No. 5, then on two-story building No. 3. Only one striker left. He came staggering out to police lines complaining he was too ill to stick it out. He was sent home in technical custody.

With the tear gas virtually exhausted, officials went into conference with plant authorities.

NEW FISHING TAX VOTED Payment of Delinquent Real Assessments Revised

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—(UP)—State Department of Education officials today lent their support to an emergency bill to allocate $300,000 for the rehabilitation of schools damaged by the recent floods.

The bill, introduced in the house yesterday by Rep. John Hayden, R., Clermont, was immediately referred to the finance committee under suspension of the rules to assure speedy consideration.

School officials said the proposed appropriation would "just about cover" the cost of repairs and replacement of equipment.

"The funds will take care of what WPA can't," an education department spokesman said. It was pointed out that WPA can only contribute labor and make repairs on the buildings. Equipment must be paid for from other sources.

Director Put in Charge

The appropriation would be made to the director of education, who would allocate the funds to boards of education in proportion of their needs.

A bill designed to stimulate the payment of delinquent taxes was passed by the house, 86 to 25, after Republican Floor Leader William M. McCulloch denounced the proposed measure on the grounds that it was "another step toward putting all the teeth in our laws requiring prompt tax payments."

The bill provides remission of 75 per cent of the penalty if the taxes are paid within 30 days after becoming delinquent, 50 per cent if paid within 60 days and 25 if paid within 90 days.

"Few folks realize," says Hoot Gibson, star of "Cavalcade of the West," at the Circle Theatre, "the part played by the horse in America's history. The horseman displaced the man with the axe when the line of the Frontier West was extended beyond the lands of the lower Missouri.

"The Indians had their tribal horses, which with their mustangs, descended from the Arab steeds brought here by the Spanish conquerors. But remained for the Pony Expressman to accomplish the ultimate in transportation in the Sixties, when the mail was carried from St. Joe, Missouri, to Sacramento, California in less than ten days. It was always an obsession with me to fill a Pony Express rider role, as I visualized him, and I am grateful to producer Walter Futter for having enabled me to realize a longed-for ambition."

Joe Ferguson Imitates "Honest Vic" in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—(UP)—"Little Joe" Ferguson paused in the midst of his steaming liquor department investigation today to pay his compliments to his ideal—"Honest Vic" Donahey.

"Yes, sir," the diminutive new state auditor said, running his hand through a pile of papers on his desk. "I've always been a great admirer of Vic."

He pointed to a straight-backed chair in the corner of his crowded little office.

"I was sitting right in that chair talking to Vic when he was state auditor when they brought in the 30 cent potato bill," Ferguson smiled. "It was that case—Vic's refusal to approve an item of 35 cents for a baked potato on an official's expense account—that made him governor of this state and later United States Congressman."

Ferguson has had ample opportunity to learn the methods of the man observers say he is "imitating." Ferguson served under Donahey when the latter was causing the party "bosses" to grow prematurely grey years ago, by disregarding all their "advice."

It was Donahey, Ferguson says, who taught him watch the state's funds with the zeal that a careful housewife watches her nickels and dimes.

"I get pretty mad," the auditor said, his smile vanishing for a moment, "when I see things being done that are not right. 'I have started a campaign to drive out graft in all state offices wherever it may exist. I won't spare anyone that may be involved.'"

He leaned forward. "I'm just like Vic," he confided. "More or less a lone wolf."

Ferguson's "obsession" for honesty in the public service is not where his similarity to Donahey ends.

Like Donahey, he is careful almost to a fault. Everything down to the smallest item must be checked and checked again to make certain nothing will slip by.

Both depend on their personal following to achieve their ends, rather than allowing the party "machine" to carry them along.

Although it took two tries by Ferguson to only one by Donahey to reach the auditor's office, both used the same tactics when they arrived.

As soon as Donahey took over the job, he began earning a reputation as the "watchdog" of the treasury by cutting down expense accounts.

GOOD CORN CROP REQUIRES MUCH RAIN IN SUMMER

Ohio State Expert Reports
11.7 Inches Needed to
Mature Ohio Supply

SALTER GIVES STATEMENT

Cultural Practices Advised to Produce 60 Bushels

Pickaway County farmers who plan to produce 60 bushels or better of corn to the acre in 1937 should also make plans to have about 20 to 24 inches of rainfall during the season when the crop is growing, according to Professor F. J. Salter, agronomy department, Ohio State University. Professor Salter says the corn crop itself uses 11.7 inches of rainfall in growing to maturity, and that one-half or more of the normal rainfall is lost by evaporation from the surface of the soil, by run-off rains, or in other ways that water escapes from the soil zone in which the corn plant procures its food and water. Schemes to produce rain when needed have been failures, so the farmer has to make the best possible use of natural rainfall.

Ohio recently experienced one of the worst floods in its history, and this followed immediately after a summer when crops in the state suffered severely from drought. Flood waters which have passed down the river cannot benefit 1937 crops, but Professor Salter gives some suggestions about conserving soil moisture.

Others Need Rain

Some crops are injured less than others by summer droughts. Wheat and alfalfa withstand drought conditions quite well but corn, oats, and new seedlings of red clover are badly damaged in seasons of deficient rainfall. It also has been proved by experience in Ohio that hybrid corns are more drought resistant than the ordinary corn varieties.

In addition to choosing the right kind of crops, Professor Salter recommends certain cultural practices which tend to retain water in the soil. Corn will produce a good crop on rich soil with less

Miss Canter Has Hobby
Miss Maxine Canter at "Brinks", has a hobby that has some of the nationally known people pushed into the discard as a relic collector. She has a collection of toy elephants from twenty states of the forty-eight. Another prominent personage, whom she did not care to mention, had started the same hobby last Fall, and up to November 3 his collections came from just two states. We kindly offered to increase her collection if she would accept a few donkeys. This she has not yet agreed to do, it's elephants, and more elephants, she wants.

OPEN LETTERS

TO EVERYBODY

FRIENDS: Now is perhaps the most impressive period of the year in our churches. The Lenten season, with its great religious significance, is with us once more. With it comes a loftiness of spirit and uplifting idealism that cannot be mistaken. Pastors in keeping with the meaning of the season have prepared special sermons. As a time of special penance, preceding the great feast of Easter, Lent is observed by Christians all over the world. Circleville and Pickaway county churchgoers should not miss the many opportunities offered them during this holy season. Let us make it a period of self-examination.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNCILMEN

OFFICIALS: The move to resume discussions with the Southern Ohio Electric Co. about rates for Circleville consumers is timely. The users of "juice" in Circleville deserve the lowest rate possible, and it is up to you and the utility to get together in an agreement. While you are discussing a fair price, please consider the existing rate for commercial establishments. It is the business house more than any other that deserves consideration. A cheaper electric rate would mean a better-lighted uptown district.

CIRCUITEER

TO W. E. WALLACE

DEAR SIR: Election as president of the Chamber of Commerce is an honor in itself, but re-election is proof that the first term has been a success. Such is the tribute paid to you when directors of the business organization chose you to serve another year. You have proved a good leader and organizer, and your colleagues appreciate the fact they have a good man at the head of the Chamber. Orchids, too, should go to James I. Smith Jr. and Mack Parrett, elected vice president and secretary, respectively.

CIRCUITEER

TO JACK LANDRUM

COACH: Your acceptance of appointment as master of one of the city's Boy Scout troops is pleasing news to parents of all the members of that organization. Your knowledge of boys' work, the games they like, their ability to do things, and your own desire to work with the youngsters should make the troop one of the outstanding.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

PERHAPS sentiment is shifting from President Roosevelt through out the country, as some papers and commentators say — but this column's observers find no evidence of it. They rather believe that Democrats who oppose the president may find it difficult to be re-elected.

It may seem strange to many persons, but our observers believe that if the president had not taken his supreme court action, he would have weakened himself.

IN BRITAIN

Observers of British trends believe there may be an upset there within a year—the Tories finally being overturned.

The British people are becoming tired of the Tory foreign policy. Hitler and Mussolini clearly have outmaneuvered the Baldwin cabinet on every issue. Britain is humiliated.

Besides which, the British worker is beginning to growl for a New Deal. There is prosperity in England, but it is not so widely diffused as the populace would have it.

LEGISLATURES

The Roosevelt administration makes no secret that it believes many state legislatures are controlled by lobbyists, thus preventing ratification of amendments to the federal constitution.

Unicameral — one-house — legislatures, such as Senator George Norris obtained for Nebraska, eventually may solve the solution.

Utility corporations have spent huge sums maintaining representatives at state capitals.

MURPHY ON BENCH

Incidentally, Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan may be offered any supreme court vacancy.

Then, again, he may be needed in Michigan — to keep it in the Democratic column.

After all, Michigan has a 1940 Republican presidential potential, in whom there is state pride, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg. But at the moment, Senator Vandenberg has lost large groups of workers.

STREETS

Hundreds of miles of streets were ruined in cities that were inundated by the flood.

The majority of cities have not enough funds to make repairs. They cannot even match funds with the federal government.

Congressmen representing those communities are a power in Washington. The cities probably will get the money to repair their ing in central Ohio. The American Legion has shown much interest in Troop No. 158, which you are heading, and with the support of the veterans I hope the organization goes forward. In the same breath I congratulate women of the community who are taking leading roles in organization of Girl Scout work. The girls of scout age in Circleville and Pickaway county will welcome a chance for organization.

CIRCUITEER

TO PARENTS

FOLK: Some time ago an effort was made to boost scouting in Circleville. There are some active troops here but many more should be organized and supported by civic organizations or churches. So far the program to organize additional troops has been moving slowly. Parents appreciate the great benefits of scouting and yet they do little to support the organization of more troops.

CIRCUITEER

TO JAMES I. SMITH, JR.

DEAR SIR: Members of the flood control committee made a wise selection when they appointed you as chairman to carry out the hopes and plans of your late father who wanted to see this district free from devastating flood waters. It would be impossible to estimate the damage caused to Pickaway county lowlands by flood water. Fortunately residents of the county know the history of Scioto river floods and keep their homes clear of flood territory. All are vitally interested to know flood control plans for this district. I hope you receive splendid support from other members of your committee and your committee accomplishes its aims.

CIRCUITEER

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Considerable interest has been stirred up toward the construction of additional public restrooms in Circleville, but no action has been taken by either the city or county to start plans. City health officials started the program, county commissioners have expressed willingness to cooperate with the city in the expense, but it appears the two groups should meet to work out some definite agreements. This city has needed additional public toilet facilities for many years. Residents hope some arrangements are worked out soon for the improvements, at least before next Pumpkin Show.

CIRCUITEER

TO RURAL RESIDENTS

FRIENDS: About March 1 will find many of you on the move leaving the present homestead to cast your lots in new territory. With livestock and crops at the lowest levels in early March, this season generally is considered moving time. During the last year Pickaway county farmers have enjoyed the best profits in many years. I hope good prices continue. Considering the floods, sandstorms and other disasters that have struck various sections of the country, Pickaway county is a garden spot for the farmer, and you should think twice before removing from this district.

CHAPTER 26

JANET rummaged through her wardrobe and found a white chiffon skirt that was sufficiently full so that it could be shortened. She found a red Spanish shawl and a tall comb. She wrapped the shawl about her and stuck the comb in her hair. The effect was hardly devastatingly Carmen-like.

In fact it reduced her to complete nonentity and made her feel depressed.

She was dressing for the costume party to be given by the Countess Di Gremini, a former New York society woman who now made her home in Hollywood and gave fabulous parties to bolster up her slipping popularity in the east.

Definitely Janet disliked the whole idea. She thought: You have to have a certain kind of personality to carry a costume with aplomb. I haven't. And I don't like blowing horns and wearing paper caps. I don't like jumping through paper hoops either but I seem to be doing it every day of my life these days.

"Darling," she had said to her husband, "that plane trip was very exhausting and I really don't mind having you go without me."

Then she realized it really wasn't that Joel wanted her to go with him because he wanted her to be with him; he had another reason.

He had said, "Have you not got with me the first night of your return? There has been enough said now without giving them anything else to say."

Janet had wanted to ask why, who was saying what, but the maid was in the dining room then and, when she had served them their vegetables, Joel had changed the subject.

Then there were some telephone calls for each of them and it was time to dress for the party.

Joel had never looked handsomer or more debonair to Janet than he did that night. He had worn a Spanish costume to join in effect with hers. But it served merely to contrast her own colorlessness. Janet had been right; she wasn't the type for costume parties. She rather resented Joel's attractiveness.

She was strangely silent as their big car rolled over the roads to Brentwood. She knew that her silence made Joel uncomfortable.

"Joel," she said at last, "what's it all about? You'd better tell me. I'd rather hear it from you. I know that there has been talk about something. It probably isn't very important; it seldom is out here. But it is important enough to upset you. I know you so well. I know when you erect walls between us. You're so obvious about it. Tell me?"

"Well," he began and stopped. He made much ado about tapping his cigarette, lighting it. Then he held it in his fingers and didn't even notice when the light went out.

"Come on," she said lightly. "It can't be so bad."

"Oh, it isn't bad," he said hastily. "It really isn't anything, except you see I... after you went away... one night I... that is, Chester Vernon and I..."

"I know," Janet said, "you wrote me about it. You went to Carol Griest's because you were making a picture with her and you wanted to talk it over. You wrote me about it, don't you remember?"

She felt rather than heard Joel's sigh of relief. "Yes," he said, "that was it."

There was a pause. "Well go on, Joel. People don't talk about that. What else was there?"

"Nothing. Nothing," he said. "Oh, come, dearest!" Janet encouraged. "I know better. I know that you went to the bouts" with Carol and you went... let me see..."

"How did you know that?" he asked quickly.

"You wrote me," she answered gently. "And I'll tell you the rest. After the bouts you and Carol went out somewhere for a bite of supper and you danced. You had a good time and your wife was far away, and on a lonely night, you thought you'd call Carol up and ask her if she'd take pity on you and she did. Right?"

"Right," he said it before he thought of better answer. "And so," she said slowly but lightly, "it got to be a habit. First thing you knew people were saying that the reason Janet Paynter had gone east was because she was leaving her husband. Before you could blink an eye, the scribes were linking your name to Carol's and your public didn't like the idea of an idol deserting his faithful wife and the studio heads called you in and said you'd have to do something about it."

Janet didn't realize as she made up her tale how closely she had hit the truth. She had unerringly found the outline. And she had avoided the filling in as neatly as though she had arranged it. She avoided it even in her own thinking.

Joel reached for her hand. She gave it to him but she didn't relax it in his big one.

"Honey," he said, "you're a woman in a million! I've heard about understanding women but I never thought I'd be lucky enough to marry one. Where do you keep all those brains in your pretty little head?"

Janet felt the weight of his anxiety lift as though she had carried the burden herself.

"Why should I be understanding, Joel? There isn't anything for me to understand, is there?"

"No, of course not," he said hastily. Janet thought: If only he wouldn't answer so quickly as though he were telling me that I'm making up the story he wanted to tell me and not the truth.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"You know how folk are out here," he said.

"Joel, what's it all about?"

here," he was saying, "they make mountains out of molehills. Just because Carol and I..."

Carol and I! Jealousy was a rapier-thin, red-hot knife cutting through Janet's heart. Just to hear him say it so intimately!

"... happened to meet occasionally in the commissary for lunch, they got buzzing."

Janet wanted to say that Carol wore his orchids. She didn't say it.

"Carol's a darn sweet kid and she had nothing to do with it. She said she didn't want to see me any more but I told her I'd tell you all about it."

Two thoughts crowded in on Janet. She didn't think that any woman who had divorced three husbands was correctly classed as "a darn sweet kid." And she thought that the future tense wasn't very flattering. Joel had said, "I'd tell you all about it."

She doubted very much if Carol Griest had said she wasn't going to see Joel any more for any other reason than that she knew her men and she knew that was the one thing to say to Joel.

She hated Carol Griest but she'd never let her know that; or Joel either.

She was prepared for her own benefit and for the benefit of all who might see to greet Carol Griest—should she be at that party—like a long lost sister. She was going to be so close to Carol Griest, she'd perplex even that lady.

But she wasn't prepared to see Carol greet her husband with a lingering, "Darling!" Or favor him with a glance of such pity after a quick glance at Janet that there was no one in the room who missed its implication. "You poor, dear Joel, with that dreadful little wife come back again!" it seemed to say.

"Hello," she said to Janet, "how nice that you're back!"

"Isn't it?" Janet said. "Now we'll all have a lot of fun together."

You're Telling Me!

NOT TO BE outdone by the various earls and lords of England who are claiming the hereditary rights to do certain service on Coronation day, our old friend, Dr. Zadok Dumbkopf, N. R. A., T. V. A. and strictly C. O. D., is claiming his family's ancient right of making a fool of himself in the presence of the new king.

"My family," Zadok says proudly, "have been the biggest jokes on Coronation day since the time of William Rufus. From father to son we have handed down a sure-fire set of gags to tickle the royal risibilities."

"The founder of our line foolishness was Sir Zany Dumbkopf, who invented the 'that wasn't a lady, that was my wife' story. It made King William laugh so heartily it was fully 10 minutes before he could recover sufficiently to order."

Nature of Pneumonia Described for Layman

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
A READER asks me to describe pneumonia so that the layman can have an intelligent idea of its nature. There are two or three different kinds of pneumonia, all caused by some kind of germ which lights on the tissue of the lung and causes an inflammatory exudate to form.

Dr. Clendening

Broncho-pneumonia probably follows an infection in the bronchial tubes out into a number of small lungs ending all over both lungs. Lobar pneumonia, on the contrary, is a mass infection of all the cells in one lobe of the lung. What is generally called double pneumonia is involvement of more than one lobe.

There are no fewer than ten different kinds of germs capable of producing pneumonia. Lobar pneumonia is usually caused by some form of the pneumococcus. These small paired germs have been divided into four types, as follows:

Type	Per Cent Frequency	Per Cent Mortality
I	40	25
II	25	50
III	15	60
IV	20	10
	100	36 (average)

germ that causes streptococcal sore throat. Pneumonia usually comes on suddenly with a chill, pain in the side of the chest, fever, followed shortly by the coughing of rusty sputum which looks as if it contained "brick dust sputum". This appearance is due to the red blood cells coming up into the sputum from the exudate. There is no other disease except malaria which is so frequently ushered in with a chill.

Need Rest and Physician

In this kind of weather, any of these symptoms, but especially the onset of a chill, should indicate immediate bed rest and the services of your family physician. In treatment, this rest is all-important. Fresh air, sensibly applied, is the next most important consideration. I say "sensibly applied", because frequently in severe weather the physician finds the pneumonia patient in bed with all the windows open, with so much air that he frequently is more shocked than benefited. However, it is a great advance to have air over the old days when a patient was shut up in a stuffy room, the oxygen of which was used by a stove or fire-place.

Doctor Northrup in New York, who started the open air treatment of pneumonia, used to say, "Why make the patient take five breaths when three will do the work?"

Pneumonia is a short, self-limited disease, and neither drugs nor diet are of paramount importance. In serum, it has been found that Types I and II will respond to a serum, and these constitute, as you see in the table, 65 per cent of the cases.

Typing can now be done rapidly and accurately.

The use of an oxygen tent or an oxygen chamber has been found by many physicians to be beneficial.

der Sir Zany drawn and quartered and fed to the pigeons.

"The original Pat and Mike story was the work of Tuppence, Baron Dumbkopf, who met an untimely end in the Tower of London the day after he tried his gag on King John. The king bitterly regretted this hasty move, for he soon realized that, with Tuppence gone, he, John, had become the biggest dope in the kingdom."

Pantaloen, third Earl of Dumbkopf, convulsed the court of Richard III by remarking it would be a nice day if it didn't rain. Pantaloen then set a world record by being arrested, tried, convicted and beheaded in 10 minutes 33 seconds, daylight saving time.

"Sourpuss, Duke of Dumbkopf, was one of my luckier ancestors. His vast estates were confiscated and he was banished for life because he told the grandfather of all traveling salesman-farmers' daughter stories to Queen Elizabeth."

"That ought to panic the court but if they don't get it — well, kid, it was nice knowing you."

"Now it is my turn — to carry on the Dumbkopf tradition of unbridled buffoonery. I've got a honey worked out. I'll disguise myself as a waiter, see? Then I get assigned to serve King George at the coronation banquet, see? So I slip him a cup of chilled chocolate, see? 'My good man,' his majesty."

TEMPTING MENUS

Be My Valentine

A spirit of lightness and frivolity is part of St. Valentine's Day. The name itself is lovely. It has a ring to it, and somewhat speaks of lighthearted romantic things. In keeping with this spirit of gaiety plan a Valentine's supper.

Here's a menu for an extra-special party:

Cream Soup with Water
Creamed Chicken in Puffy Shells
Buttered New Peas
Fresh Fruit Salad
Valentine Coffee Cake
Individual Ice Cream Molds

A fruit salad very simple but always elegant, helps out the "party" idea. Grapefruit, orange, banana and pineapple make a delicious one or if you must use canned fruit use peaches, apricots, cherries and peaches. The dark red or bright cherries look rich and toothsome in a fruit salad. If you live where they are available, slice of avocado pear and pumkin seeds add color and texture. Interest to a simple salad. A dressing of mayonnaise creamed with rich heavy cream, either whipped plain, enriches your salad.

For another fancy touch, sprinkle the dressing with chopped pistachio nuts. The green coloring is very attractive.

Valentine Cake

Our Valentine cake is just a fine white cake baked in a heart shaped spring form pan. Its decoration is the test of your ingenuity and imagination. But first, bake the cake!

3/4 C. shortening
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. salt
2 C. sugar
3 C. sifted cake flour
1/2 C. milk
1/2 C. water
6 egg whites
3 tsp. baking powder

Combine shortening, vanilla, and salt. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Sift flour and baking powder together three times. Add small amount of flour to "read" mixture alternately with combined milk and water, beating after each addition until smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold carefully into mixture until well blended. Pour batter into heart shaped mold. Grease mold first with a flour and shortening mixture made by blending 2 parts shortening with 1 part of flour. A heavy coating of this mixture will enable you to get the cake out of the mold with a perfectly smooth crust. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes.

Icing for Cake

3 Tbsp. shortening
1 Tbsp. butter
3 Tbsp. top milk, scalded
3 C. sifted confectioner's sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. salt

Melt shortening and butter scalded milk. Stir hot milk-ture over sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and salt. Beat until smooth and thick enough to spread. Leave one-third of the icing white, tint the other two-thirds a delicate pink with vegetable coloring. Frost cake with the pink icing for a base. With a cake decorator, flute the edges at the base and top of the cake with white frosting, then use the tube designed to make a fine line scallop the cake top inside the fluted edge. String festoons of the plain rope strips of white icing from the top of the cake down the sides. For further decoration on the top, place small white heart shaped mint patty on the pink surface and decorate it around the edges to seal it to the cake. Use daisy with a delicate yellow center and small green leaves may be added to make your cake truly Valentine in spirit.

Crime doesn't go unpunished. It just seems that way because a man commits forty crimes and pleads guilty to the least.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A CORRECTED ERROR

TWO BAD MISTAKES were made in bidding this deal. Declarer made the first one when he bid game in no trumps, just because he could make that contract. South made a worse mistake when he doubled a contract which he had no reason to think that he could defeat, thus allowing declarer to bid a small slam in his suit, instead of keeping him in a contract in which declarer had not bid, and dared not bid a small slam.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart on a hand which should have passed, then bid later; East, 3-Club, to induce partner to bid, if he held anything worth showing; South, 3-Hearts; West, 3-Spades, believing that partner might want to know about his Ace of spades; East, 3-No Trumps, which South doubled, nobody knows why. East, 6-Clubs, counting upon more spade strength than West possessed. South doubled, expecting to win two tricks in red suits.

The opening lead was South's top

trump. Declarer's 10 won. Then he ran off five added trump tricks, to force discard from defenders. Two of dummy's hearts and two of its diamonds were discarded. South let go his three lowest hearts and the 2 of diamonds. What North did does not matter. He held no possible trick, but East knew that South's opening bid almost certainly meant that he held the K of diamonds, even if his first discard did not show it.

The K and Q of spades were led. South's 10 and then his J fell, establishing two good spades in dummy, so dummy's Ace overtook declarer's Q. On dummy's two good spades declarer let go his 10 of diamonds and his lowest heart. South dared not let go another diamond, or declarer's Ace would pick up his K. South stripped down to his bare Ace of hearts and the K-J of diamonds, for his last three cards, putting him just where declarer wanted South to be.

A heart was led from dummy, taking the last card of that suit held by both declarer and South. Then South had to lead from his K-J of diamonds, up to the declarer's waiting A-Q of that suit, giving East his small slam, doubled, with 150 honor points. This was far better than making his contract of 3-No Trumps, without honors.

As a matter of fact, the small slam could have been made against any opening lead, either at clubs or no trumps. Had East chase the call at which he could score most, thanks to South's kind double of no trumps.

WAR GAMES ON PACIFIC COAST END IN TRAGEDY

of six gunmen were loading a 40-pound shell in the breech. Private David Williams, with a ramrod in his hand, was directly behind the gun, when the explosion occurred. Behind him was a "powder man" with a 20-pound bag of powder for the charge. The powder did not explode, however, and the man staggered away with it. Williams received the full force of the blast. His right arm was torn off. Captain Trumble was nearly decapitated, according to witnesses. Other marines watching the gun loading were bowled over.

The blast blew out parts of the bulkhead around the casemate. About 20 men were crowded in the small room, no more than ten by fourteen feet and seven feet high. Twelve physicians worked all night in an effort to give relief to the injured men. Most of the seriously injured were unconscious.

Vice-Admiral William T. Tarrant, commanding the scouting force, of which the Wyoming, though a training ship, was a unit, named the naval court to hold the inquest aboard the Wyoming today.

The board of inquiry tomorrow will meet aboard the U. S. S. New York, flagship of the training squadron.

Liberty Cancelled All shore liberty for officers and crew of the Wyoming was cancelled.

Naval officials refused to discuss the probable cause of the blast. However, when a similar disaster occurred 13 years ago aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi, killing 48 officers and men, the explosion was said to have been caused by burning particles from a previous discharge which ignited the powder from a fresh shell being inserted in the breech.

The accident occurred seven months after the three men were killed aboard the U. S. S. Marblehead off San Diego in a similar explosion. At that time, a high officer of the cruiser stated at the board of inquiry:

"The history of every safety device we have is written in blood. High explosive never is safe and every mishap is a lesson for future precautions."

Went to Spanish Shores

Captain Hinkamp said the Wyoming would proceed to San Diego Monday and sail for the east coast March 3. The ship was dispatched to Spain last year after the outbreak of the civil war there.

The Wyoming was engaged in an evacuation problem, one of the final phases of combined maneuvers of the army, navy and marine corps on the island.

The Wyoming was scheduled to return to the harbor today with part of the 4,000 men engaged in the maneuvers. The ship did not have gun turrets in use during the war games, since No. 3, 4 and 5 turrets were removed when the ship was demilitarized. Two decks were used for gun firing.

The accident happened a few minutes after 10 a. m. Thursday but the Wyoming did not arrive in the harbor until five hours later. Crowds lined the shore as ambulance boats transferred the victims to the Relief.

Neutrality seems to have the endorsement of practically all the munitions makers until it means foregoing the profits of war.

and fire insurance so go ahead—use any method at your command—but get them out. It is not fair to our loyal workers to allow them to remain in possession of the plant."

The plant has been closed by the strike since Wednesday. One deputy sheriff, who refused to allow use of his name, said he had been fired at four times by a striker with a shotgun in an upper story of the plant. The United Press correspondent, who witnessed the battle from the start, saw no sign of firearms on either side. However, there was a constant bombardment of tear gas bombs, which spread gas upward toward the factory.

The white streamers poured from hundreds of windows shattered by the strikers. The men inside turned on the ventilation system and the blowers cleared much of the tear gas before the company turned off the electricity. Several of the attacking force were burned slightly by yellow acid used in fire extinguishers.

The attack — first attempted mass eviction of sit-down strikers in the recent outbreak of that form of labor demonstration — was made under a court order issued secretly last night by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady. Earlier yesterday Dady signed an injunction ordering the strikers to evacuate immediately. When they defied the sheriff he ordered them arrested for contempt of court.

The seven and one-half acre plant, which manufactures electrical parts for automobiles and radio from such valuable metals as tungsten, molybdenum, and tantalum, contains delicate machinery which the strikers had threatened to damage if they were attacked.

After the first exchange, the attackers stepped back and again an officer called:

"Come on out."

"Go to blazes," came a voice from the plant.

Deputies and six assisting policemen then began hurling cartridge after cartridge of tear gas into the lower story of the plant.

EMMITT ANKROM JUMPS

Two Bales, Each Weighing 200 Pounds, Strike Men

Two Container Corporation of America laborers were in Berger hospital Friday suffering probable internal injuries as a result of a straw fall Thursday afternoon.

Injured are Van Smith, 35, Walnut street, and Homer Rhoades, 33, York street.

The injuries of both men are painful, but X-ray pictures have not been taken yet to determine whether there are any bones broken. Both complain of chest and back pains.

Ankrom Escapes Unhurt

Emmitt Ankrom, York street, working with the injured pair, escaped a like fate when he leaped to safety as six heavy bales fell between 15 and 20 feet off the top of a rick they were "cutting down". The men standing on the rick about six bales off the ground. It believed the rick was being cut down too steep. All the bales were water-soaked and much heavier than usual. Strawboard officials declared they weighed about 200 pounds each.

Two of the bales struck Smith and Rhoades.

In addition to possible injuries both men suffered from shock.

Smith has been employed at the Container Corporation since March 27, 1934; Rhoades since Aug. 1, 1935.

The injured men were taken to Berger hospital in the Albaugh Co. ambulance.

"The Baby Bit Me"

QUOTED by police as admitting he slew a 15-month-old baby in "self defense", Clyde Proctor, 27-year-old husky truck driver was held for second degree murder at Oneonta, N. Y. According to police, Proctor said, "the baby bit me on the hand and I got mad. I shook it until its head snapped." The baby was the son of Mrs. Thomas Hineley, 19, with whom Proctor had boarded for eight months.

ELEVENTH STATE DISTRICT INTACT UNDER NEW BILL

The Eleventh Ohio congressional district would remain intact under the amended bill of Rep. George J. Harter, Summit county Democrat, scheduled for final consideration in the house of representatives next week.

The district, as at present, lists Pickaway, Ross, Fairfield, Hocking and Perry counties.

The Harter bill, recommended by the house federal relations committee, of which Clark Hunsicker, Pickaway county representative is a member, would create 24 congressional districts, four of which would be in Cuyahoga county. Election of the present two congressmen-at-large would be eliminated by the bill.

COMPROMISE FOR SUPREME COURT REVISION SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(UP)—The administration pressed its efforts to rally support for President Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the Supreme Court today while the search for a compromise pleasing to all sides continued.

Among the half dozen compromises advanced, the most widely discussed was a resolution by Sens. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., and Homer T. Bone, D. Wash., calling for a constitutional amendment which, under certain conditions, would permit congress to override Supreme Court invalidation of acts of congress.

Even that proposal, however, appeared unlikely to win wide support unless administration leaders withdrew opposition to any compromise. Many of the so-called conservative opponents of the president's plan also opposed the Wheeler-Bone proposal.

WAR GAMES ON PACIFIC COAST END IN TRAGEDY

Several Other Injured Men Feared Dying in San Pedro Hospital

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Feb. 19.—(UP)—A sweeping naval investigation into the explosion aboard the old demilitarized battleship, the Wyoming, that killed seven marines and wounded 10 began today. It was believed that some of the men hurt critically would die.

Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander-in-chief of the fleet, ordered an inquest for today and commanded a board of inquiry to begin an investigation Saturday. It was the second serious accident aboard naval vessels off the San Clemente Island training grounds within seven months, and the fifth within a year on the Pacific.

1,500 Men on Dreadnaught

Thirteen hundred men were aboard the old dreadnaught yesterday when a charge of powder in a five inch gun exploded prematurely, sending torn steel and iron fragments into its crew. Four men were killed outright, two died within a few minutes, and the 11 were burned and maimed.

Captain C. N. Hinkamp, commander of the Wyoming, raced his ship into San Pedro Harbor and transferred the wounded and dead to the hospital ship, the Relief. On his quarter deck, plainly showing the shock and strain of the tragedy, he said:

"It was a terrible accident. One of the five inch guns, the after gun on the main deck, starboard side, back-fired."

The Wyoming was stripped of her 14 inch guns mounted in turrets under the Washington naval treaty, thus "demilitarizing" her. She still carries her secondary batteries of 12 and 5 inch guns, the latter mounted in casemats, small gun runs projecting from the hull just below the main deck.

In addition to its regular navy crew, she carried 1,000 marines from the Quantico, Va., marine barracks.

Lutz Ashbrook Sailor On Warship Wyoming

Family Believes Youth Unharmed in Fatal Accident; Several Circleville Boys Take Part in 'Games'

Fred Lutz Ashbrook, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Ashbrook, of near Yellowbud, is a sailor on the battleship Wyoming on which a five-inch gun exploded Thursday killing eleven men and injuring 10.

Mr. Ashbrook said his son was assigned to the battleship last July 5. He joined the navy in March, 1935. In recent letters Fred had informed his parents the ship was to take part in fleet maneuvers at San Clemente Island about sixty miles offshore from San Pedro, Calif.

The parents have received no word from their son since the explosion but they believe he was unharmed. Mr. Ashbrook said he believed his son was the only sailor from this district on the Wyoming.

Other Youths Safe

Robert and Roderick Watts, twin sons of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Watts, E. Main street, are on the battleship Tennessee. Dr. Watts said letters had been received from the boys this week but no mention had been made of the maneuvers. They are stationed near San Pedro. Dr. Watts said the Tennessee was expected to go into dry dock about the first of March.

Robert E. Friece, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Friece, 525 E. Mound street, is on the U. S. S. Colorado which took part in the maneuvers. He is a first class seaman and is stationed at San Pedro.

The U. S. S. Marblehead on which Terry Hitchcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hitchcock, 349 E. Union street, is stationed, took part in the maneuvers. It is to leave Saturday for Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Hitchcock informed his parents about the maneuvers.

Raymond Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill, N. Court street, is on the U. S. S. Louisville. He has been stationed in the Hawaiian Islands. His parents do not believe this ship took part in the maneuvers.

Mrs. Gerhardt leaves two other daughters, Mrs. Millie Eschbaugh and Miss Francis Gerhardt; two sons, Grover and George, four brothers and three sisters.

Brief funeral services will be held at the home Sunday at 1 p. m. with additional services at 2 p. m. in the Christian church, Mt. Sterling. Burial will be in Mt. Sterling by E. T. Snyder.

GOV. DAVEY ASKS 10 MILLIONS FOR LIQUOR CONTROL

Ferguson Says Hearings May Be Held in His Inquiry

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19—(UP)—Members of the legislature were asked today by Governor Davey to pass a bill appropriating $10,000,000 to the state liquor department "with no strings attached."

Members of the senate finance committee, now considering the bill, were called into the governor's office and asked to pass the measure "without amendment," it was learned.

Previously, the committee had amended the bill to reduce the two-year appropriation to $2,500,000 for six months, and to strike out a provision giving the finance director control over liquor department purchases.

Amendments Studied

After the conference in the governor's office, Sen. Emerson Campbell, D., Belmont, chairman of the committee, called a meeting to reconsider the amendments.

Sen. V. H. Metcalf, only Republican member of the committee, accused the governor of attempting to "jam the bill down our throats."

"If the governor and Ray Allison, finance director, are going to run this committee and this legislature, we might as well pack up and go home," Metcalf said.

"These amendments were placed in the bill by the committee in regular, legal fashion. Now the governor has decided he wants the whole $10,000,000 with no strings (Continued on Page Eight)

WPA NEEDS NEW LOCAL PROJECTS

Courtright Warns Many Men May Lose Jobs Unless Work Is Provided

Unless more projects are submitted to the local WPA office in the near future heavy reductions in the payroll will be necessary, Vattier Courtright, field engineer, announced Friday.

He said he had appealed to the city, county and trustees to submit projects. At the present time there are about 15 in operation furnishing employment to 360 men.

Most of these projects will be completed during the next two or three months. There are not sufficient new projects to absorb the workers. The sidewalk project will be resumed as soon as weather conditions permit, he explained, but many more are needed from the various subdivisions.

Under present WPA regulations the sponsors of projects are required to pay more than 20 percent of the entire cost of the project.

THREE YOUTHS FACING RETURN TO COUNTY JAIL

Three youths of the Clarksburg vicinity are being held in Ross county for Pickaway county authorities on charges of stealing corn.

The youths are Donald, 19, and Ross Draise, 14, and Vesper Daniels, 19. The youths, Ross county officials said, were first arrested for investigation in the theft of corn from Earl Metzger of near Clarksburg. Later it was learned they had taken no corn from the Metzger place but obtained sacks at his crib and took corn from a crib belonging to Arthur Mace.

Mr. Mace is a resident of Ross county but the crib from which the corn was taken is in Pickaway county so a transfer of the case was arranged.

WAUKEGAN, ILL. FANSTEEL PLANT SCENE OF RIOT

100 Men Throw Tungsten, Heavy Weights, Shatter Factory Windows

MORE TEAR GAS SOUGHT

Circuit Judge's Order to Oust Men Brings Fight

BULLETIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(UP)—Harry Scheck, U. S. department of labor conciliator, said today that he would go to Waukegan, where sheriff's deputies were battling metal workers at the Fansteel plant.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 19—

(UP)—A force of 140 sheriff's deputies failed in a two hour siege to dislodge more than 100 sit-down strikers from two plants of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation today but a new attack was planned.

Hundreds of tear gas bombs were exploded inside the two buildings but the strikers mopped their streaming eyes and held off the attack by hurling bottles of tungsten and tantalum valued at $500 each, fragments of molybdenum, and heavy steel weights.

"We're sending for more gas from Chicago," Chief Deputy Sheriff Tom Kennedy threatened. "We're trying to get some knock-out gas. If we can get that to them they'll fold up and we can lead them out by the ear lobes."

Lull About 9 a. m.

There was a lull in the fighting shortly before 9 a. m. The strikers and officers had been battling since 6:40 a. m. Sheriff L. A. Doolittle strode up to a plant window at 6:30 and read a court order calling for arrest of every one of the strikers, members of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a Committee for Industrial Organization unit.

"Anybody who wants to come out peacefully come out now," the sheriff shouted.

"We're standing on our rights," replied Carl Swanson, secretary of local No. 44 of the union, which called the strike demanding union recognition and collective bargaining.

Two policemen then battered in the door of plant No. 5 and began pouring in tear gas projectiles. Many policemen and special deputies were cut and bruised by flying missiles.

The sit-downers demanded recognition of the union and the right to bargain collectively. A company spokesman charged that the strike was called merely to injure the company's business.

The attack was concentrated first on three-story building No. 3, then on two-story building No. 5. Only one striker left. He came staggering out to police lines complaining he was too ill to stick it out. He was sent home in technical custody.

With the tear gas virtually exhausted, officials went into conference with plant authorities.

Ordered to Go Ahead

"These men no longer are trespassers—they are lawbreakers," a company official was overheard telling Kennedy. "We've got riot (Continued on Page Eight)

TREGO RELEASE ARGUED BEFORE ADKINS FRIDAY

Briefs are to be submitted by attorneys in the habeas corpus proceedings for Allen "Buck" Trego, presented to Common Pleas Judge Joseph W. Adkins Friday morning.

Trego has served 97 days in the county jail and the total time required to serve out the fines imposed for game law violations, $40 days.

GOOD CORN CROP REQUIRES MUCH RAIN IN SUMMER

Ohio State Expert Reports
11.7 Inches Needed to
Mature Ohio Supply

SALTER GIVES STATEMENT

Cultural Practices Advised to Produce 60 Bushels

Pickaway County farmers who plan to produce 60 bushels or better of corn to the acre in 1937 should also make plans to have about 20 to 24 inches of rainfall during the season when the crop is growing, according to Professor F. J. Salter, agronomy department, Ohio State University.

Professor Salter says the corn crop itself uses 11.7 inches of rainfall in growing to maturity, and that one-half or more of the normal rainfall is lost by evaporation from the surface of the soil, by run-off rains, or in other ways that water escapes from the soil zone in which the corn plant procures its food and water. Schemes to produce rain when needed have been failures, so the farmer has to make the best possible use of natural rainfall.

Ohio recently experienced one of the worst floods in its history, and this followed immediately after a summer when crops in the state suffered severely from drought. Flood waters which have passed down the river cannot benefit 1937 crops, but Professor Salter gives some suggestions about conserving soil moisture.

Others Need Rain

Some crops are injured less than others by summer droughts. Wheat and alfalfa withstand drought conditions quite well but corn, oats, and new seedlings of red clover are badly damaged in seasons of deficient rainfall. It also has been proved by experience in Ohio that hybrid corns are more drought resistant than the ordinary corn varieties.

In addition to choosing the right kind of crops, Professor Salter recommends certain cultural practices which tend to retain water in the soil. Corn will produce a good crop on rich soil with less

Gets Seven Years

AN EXTORTION letter sent to City Manager H. F. McElroy of Kansas City, Mo., demanding $500 under threat of abducting McElroy's daughter, Mary, kidnapped for $30,000 ransom in 1933, ends in a seven-year-prison sentence for Joyce McGee, above, a patient in the Kansas City general hospital.

Miss McGee, shown in court receiving sentence, claimed she was the wife of George McGee, who is serving a life sentence for the 1933 McElroy abduction.

water than it will on a poor soil. Lime, commercial fertilizers, and manure all help improve the soil and, therefore, minimize dry weather.

Water is held on the surface of the soil and is given a chance to soak downward if the land is covered with grass or legume sods. These sods are present in good crop rotations so rains that fall in the winter and spring are conserved in sod fields and a part of the moisture is retained and can be used by the corn crop which follows the sod.

The penetration of rain water into the soil is of little value unless the soil is in condition to hold water. Unless the soil has a supply of organic matter, water passes rapidly downward and is soon below the level where plant roots can reach it. One experiment showed that soil which had been manured held two-thirds of the available moisture in the top nine inches of soil three days after a rain. An adjoining plot where no manure had been applied lost practically all the moisture in the same three-day period.

BEWARE OF COLDS WHEN CONSTIPATED

In winter, colds and other germs collect in every crowded place. People whose resistance is low are easy victims.

That's why you should guard against common constipation. It saps your vitality, pulls down your defenses against infection.

Keep on your toes this winter. Protect yourself from constipation by eating a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran is a generous source of corrective "bulk."

Within the body, Kellogg's All-Bran absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, and gently sponges out the system. All-Bran also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood.

How much better than taking weakening pills and drugs. Serve All-Bran as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into recipes.

Just eat two tablespoons daily. In severe cases, with every meal. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

OPEN LETTERS

TO EVERYBODY

FRIENDS: Now is perhaps the most impressive period of the year in our churches. The Lenten season, with its great religious significance, is with us once more. With it comes a loftiness of spirit and uplifting idealism that cannot be mistaken. Pastors in keeping with the meaning of the season have prepared special sermons. As a time of special penance, preceding the great feast of Easter, Lent is observed by Christians all over the world. Circleville and Pickaway county churchgoers should not miss the many opportunities offered them during this holy season. Let us make it a period of self-examination.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNCILMEN

OFFICIALS: The move to resume discussions with the Southern Ohio Electric Co. about rates for Circleville consumers is timely. The users of "juice" in Circleville deserve the lowest rate possible, and it is up to you and the utility to get together in an agreement. While you are discussing a fair price, please consider the existing rate for commercial establishments. It is the business house more than any other that deserves consideration. A cheaper electric rate would mean a better-lighted uptown district.

CIRCUITEER

TO W. E. WALLACE

DEAR SIR: Election as president of the Chamber of Commerce is an honor in itself, but re-election is proof that the first term has been a success. Such is the tribute paid to you when directors of the business organization chose you to serve another year. You have proved a good leader and organizer, and your colleagues appreciate the fact they have a good man at the head of the Chamber. Orchids, too, should go to James I. Smith Jr. and Mack Parrett, elected vice president and secretary, respectively.

CIRCUITEER

TO JACK LANDRUM

COACH: Your acceptance of appointment as master of one of the city's Boy Scout troops is pleasing news to parents of all the members of that organization. Your knowledge of boys' work, the games they like, their ability to do things, and your own desire to work with the youngsters should make the troop one of the outstanding in central Ohio. The American Legion has shown much interest in Troop No. 158, which you are heading, and with the support of the veterans I hope the organization goes forward. In the same breath I congratulate women of the community who are taking leading roles in organization of Girl Scout work. The girls of scout age in Circleville and Pickaway county will welcome a chance for organization.

CIRCUITEER

TO PARENTS

FOLK: Some time ago an effort was made to boost scouting in Circleville. There are some active troops here but many more should be organized and supported by civic organizations or churches. So far the program to organize additional troops has been moving slowly. Parents appreciate the great benefits of scouting and yet they do little to support the organization of more troops.

CIRCUITEER

TO JAMES I. SMITH, JR.

DEAR SIR: Members of the flood control committee made a wise selection when they appointed you as chairman to carry out the hopes and plans of your late father who wanted to see this district free from devastating flood waters. It would be impossible to estimate the damage caused to Pickaway county lowlands by flood water. Fortunately residents of the county know the history of Scioto river floods and keep their homes clear of flood territory. All are vitally interested to know flood control plans for this district. I hope you receive splendid support from other members of your committee and your committee accomplishes its aims.

CIRCUITEER

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

GENTLEMEN: Considerable interest has been stirred up toward the construction of additional public restrooms in Circleville, but no action has been taken by either the city or county to start plans. City health officials started the program, county commissioners have expressed willingness to cooperate with the city in the expense, but it appears the two groups should meet to work out some definite agreements. This city has needed additional public toilet facilities for many years. Residents hope some arrangements are worked out soon for the improvements, at least before next Pumpkin Show.

CIRCUITEER

TO RURAL RESIDENTS

FRIENDS: About March 1 will find many of you on the move leaving the present homestead to cast your lots in new territory. With livestock and crops at the lowest levels in early March, this season generally is considered moving time. During the last year Pickaway county farmers have enjoyed the best profits in many years. I hope good prices continue. Considering the floods, sandstorms and other disasters that have struck various sections of the country, Pickaway county is a garden spot for the farmer, and you should think twice before removing from this district.

The DAY THAT I FORGET

CHAPTER 26
JANET rummaged through her wardrobe and found a white chiffon skirt that was sufficiently full so that it could be shortened. She found a red Spanish shawl and a tall comb. She wrapped the shawl about her and stuck the comb in her hair. The effect was hardly devastatingly Carmen-like.
In fact it reduced her to complete nonentity and made her feel depressed.
She was dressing for the costume party to be given by the Countess Di Gremelin, a former New York society woman who now made her home in Hollywood and gave fabulous parties to bolster up her slipping popularity in the east.
Definitely Janet disliked the whole idea. She thought: You have to have a certain kind of personality to carry a costume with aplomb. I haven't. And I don't like blowing horns and wearing paper caps. I don't like jumping through paper hoops either but I seem to be doing it every day of my life these days.
"Darling," she had said to her husband, "that plane trip was very exhausting and I really don't mind having you go without me."
Then she realized it really wasn't that Joel wanted her to go with him because he wanted her to be with him; he had another reason.
He had said, "Have you not got with me the first night of your return? There has been enough said now without giving them anything else to say."
Janet had wanted to ask why, who was saying what, but the maid was in the dining room then and, when she had served them their vegetables, Joel had changed the subject.
Then there were some telephone calls for each of them and it was time to dress for the party.
Joel had never looked handsomer or more debonair to Janet than he did that night. He had worn a Spanish costume to join in effect with hers. But it served merely to contrast her own colorlessness. Janet had been right; she wasn't the type for costume parties. She rather resented Joel's attractiveness.
She was strangely silent as their big car rolled over the roads to Brentwood. She knew that her silence made Joel uncomfortable.
"Joel," she said at last, "what's it all about? You'd better tell me. I'd rather hear it from you. I know that there has been talk about something. It probably isn't very important; it seldom is out here. But it is important enough to upset you. I know you so well. I know when you erect walls between us. You're so obvious about it. Tell me?"
"Well," he began and stopped. He made much ado about tapping his cigarette, lighting it. Then he held it in his fingers and didn't even notice when the light went out.
"Come on," she said lightly. "It can't be so bad."
"Oh, it isn't bad," he said hastily. "It really isn't anything, except you see I... after you went away... one night I... that is, Chester Vernon and I..."
"I know," Janet said, "you were me about it. You went to Carol Griest's because you were making a picture with her and you wanted to talk it over. You wrote me about it, don't you remember?"
She felt rather than heard Joel's sigh of relief. "Yes," he said, "that was it."
There was a pause. "Well go on, Joel. People don't talk about this. What else was there?"
"Nothing," he said.
"Oh, come, dearest!" Janet encouraged. "I know better. I know that you went to the bouts with Carol and you went... let me see... did you know that?" he asked quickly.
"You wrote me," she answered gently. "And I'll tell you the rest. After the bouts you and Carol went out somewhere for a bite of supper and you danced. You had a good time and your wife was far away, and on a lonely night, you thought you'd call Carol up and ask her if she'd take pity on you and she did. Right?"
"Right," he said before he thought of a better answer.
"And so," she said slowly but lightly, "it got to be a habit. First thing you knew people were saying that the reason Janet Paynter had gone east was because she was leaving her husband. Before you could blink an eye, the scribes were linking your name to Carol's and your public didn't like the idea of an idol deserting his faithful wife and the studio heads called you in and said you'd have to do something about it."
Janet didn't realize she had made up her tale how closely she had hit the truth. She had unerringly found the outline. And she had avoided the filling in as neatly as though she had arranged it. She avoided it even in her own thinking.
"Joel reached for her hand. She gave it to him but she didn't relax it in his big one.
"Honey," he said, "you're a woman in a million! I've heard about understanding women but I never thought I'd be lucky enough to marry one. Where do you keep all those brains in your pretty little head?"
Janet felt the weight of his anxiety lift as though she had carried the burden herself.
"Why should I be understanding, Joel? There isn't anything for me to understand, is there?"
"No, of course not," he said hastily. Janet thought: If only he wouldn't answer so quickly as though he were telling me that I'm making up the story he wanted to tell me and not the truth. "You know how folk are out here," he was saying, "they make mountains out of molehills. Just because Carol and I..."
Carol and I! Jealousy was a rapier-thin, red-hot knife cutting through Janet's heart. Just to hear him say it so intimately!
... happened to meet occasionally in the commissary for lunch, they got buzzing."
Janet wanted to say that Carol wore his orchids. She didn't say it.
"Carol's a darn sweet kid and she had nothing to do with it. She said she didn't want to see me any more but I told her I'd tell you all about it."
Two thoughts crowded in on Janet. She didn't think that any woman who had divorced three husbands was correctly classed as "a darn sweet kid." And she thought that the future tense wasn't very flattering. Joel had said, "I'd tell you all about it."
She doubted very much if Carol Griest had said she wasn't going to see Joel any more for any other reason than that she knew her men and she knew that was the one thing to say to Joel.
She hated Carol Griest but she'd never let her know that; or Joel either.
She was prepared for her own benefit and for the benefit of all who might see to greet Carol Griest—should she be at that party—like a long lost sister. She was going to be so close to Carol Griest, she'd perplex even that lady.
But she wasn't prepared to see Carol greet her husband with a lingering, "Darling." Or favor him with a glance of such pity after a quick glance at Janet that there was no one in the room who missed its implication. "You poor, dear Joel, with that dreadful little wife come back again!" it seemed to say.
"Hello," she said to Janet, "how nice that you're back!"
"Isn't it?" Janet said. "Now we'll all have a lot of fun together."

Nature of Pneumonia Described for Layman

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
A READER asks me to describe pneumonia so that the layman can have an intelligent idea of its nature. There are two or three different kinds of pneumonia, all caused by some kind of germ which lights on the tissue of the lung and causes an inflammatory exudate to form.

Dr. Clendening
In this kind of weather, any of these symptoms, but especially the onset of a chill, should indicate immediate bed rest and the services of your family physician. In treatment, this rest is all-important. Fresh air, sensibly applied, is the next most important consideration. I say "sensibly applied" because frequently in severe weather the physician finds the pneumonia patient in bed with all the windows open, with so much air that he frequently is more shocked than benefited. However, it is a great advance to have air over the old days when a patient was shut up in a stuffy room, the oxygen of which was used by a stove or fire-place.

Doctor Northrup in New York, who started the open air treatment of pneumonia, used to say, "Why cause the patient to take five breaths when three will do the work?" Pneumonia is a short, self-limited disease, and neither drugs nor diet are of paramount importance. In serum, it has been found that Types I and II will respond to a serum, and these constitute, as you see in the table, 65 per cent of the cases.

Typing can now be done rapidly and accurately. The use of an oxygen tent or an oxygen chamber has been found by many physicians to be beneficial.

TEMPTING MENUS

by

MAXINE ROBERTSON

Be My Valentine

A spirit of lightness and frivolity is part of St. Valentine's Day. The name itself is lovely. It has a ring to it, and somewhat speaks of lighthearted romantic things. In keeping with this spirit of gaiety plan a Valentine's supper.

Here's a menu for an extra-special party:

Clear Soup with Wafers
Creamed Chicken in Party Shells
Buttered New Peas
Fresh Fruit Salad
Valentine Coffee Cake
Individual Ice Cream Molds

A fruit salad very simple, but always elegant, helps out the "party" idea. Grapefruit, orange, banana and pineapple make a delicious one of you must use canned fruit, use peaches, apricots, cherries and peaches. The dark or bing cherries look rich and toothsome in a fruit salad. If you live where they are available, slice of avocado pear and pump in seeds add color and texture; interesting to a simple salad. A dressing of mayonnaise creamed with rich heavy cream, either whipped plain, enriches your salad.

For another fancy touch, sprinkle the dressing with chopped pistachio nuts. The green coloring is very attractive.

Valentine Cake

Our Valentine cake is just a fine white cake baked in a heart shaped spring form pan. Its decoration is the test of your ingenuity and imagination. But first, bake the cake!

1/2 C. shortening
1 C. sugar
1/2 C. salt
1/2 C. butter
1/2 C. sifted cake flour
1/2 C. milk
1/2 C. water
6 egg whites
3 tsp. baking powder

Combine shortening, vanilla, and salt. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Sift flour and baking powder together three times. Add small amount of flour to the cream mixture alternately with combined milk and water, beating after each addition until smooth. Beat egg whites stiff but not dry and fold carefully into mixture until well blended. Pour batter into heart-shaped mold. Grease mold first with a flour and shortening mixture made by blending 2 parts shortening with 1 part of flour. A heavy coating of this mixture will enable you to get the cake out of the mold with a perfectly smooth crust. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes.

Icing for Cake

3 Tbsp. shortening
1 Tbsp. butter
1 Tbsp. top milk, scalded
1 C. sifted confectioner's sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. salt

Melt shortening and butter scalded milk. Stir hot mixture over sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and salt. Beat until smooth and thick enough to spread. Leave one-third of the icing white, tint the other two-thirds a delicate pink with vegetable coloring. Frost cake with the pink icing for a base. With a cake decorator, flute the edges at the base and top of the cake with white frosting, then with the tube designed to make a fine line, scallop the cake top inside the fluted edge. String festoons of the plain rope strips of white icing from the top of the cake down the sides. For further decoration on the top, place small white heart shaped mint patty on the pink surface and decorate it around the edges to seal it to the cake. A daisy with a delicate yellow center and small green leaves may be added to make your cake truly Valentine in spirit.

Crime doesn't go unpunished. It just seems that way because a man commits forty crimes and pleads guilty to the least.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A CORRECTED ERROR

TWO BAD MISTAKES were made in bidding this deal. Declarer made the first one when he bid game in no trumps, just because he could make that contract. South made a worse mistake when he doubled a contract which he had no reason to think that he could defeat, thus allowing declarer to bid a small slam in his suit, instead of keeping him in a contract in which declarer had not bid, and dared not bid a small slam.

trump. Declarer's 10 won. Then he ran off five added trump tricks, to force discard from defenders. Two of dummy's hearts and two of its diamonds were discarded. South let go his three lowest hearts and the 2 of diamonds. What North did not matter. He held no possible trick, but East knew that South's opening bid almost certainly meant that he held the K of diamonds, even if his first discard did not show it.

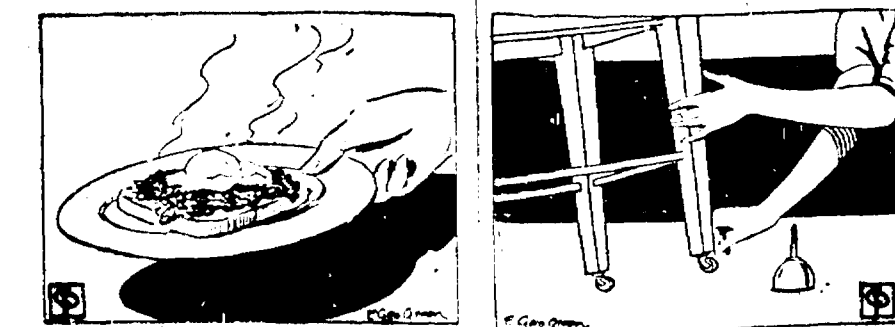

The K and Q of spades were led. South's 10 and then his J fell, establishing two good spades in dummy, so dummy's Ace overtook declarer's Q. On dummy's two good spades declarer let go his 10 of diamonds and his lowest heart. South dared not let go another diamond, or declarer's Ace would pick up his K. South stripped down to his bare Ace of hearts and the K-J of diamonds, for his last three cards, putting him just where declarer wanted South to be.

A heart was led from dummy, taking the last card of that suit held by both declarer and South. Then South had to lead from his K-J of diamonds, up to the declarer's waiting A-Q of that suit, giving East his small slam, doubled, with 150 honor points. This was far better than making his contract of 3-No Trumps, without honors.

As a matter of fact, the small slam could have been made against any opening lead, either at clubs or no trumps, but East chose the call at which he could score most, thanks to South's kind double of no trumps.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart on a hand which should have passed, then bid later; East, 3-Club, to induce partner to bid, if he held anything worth showing; South, 3-Hearts; West, 3-Spades, believing that partner might want to know about his Ace of spades; East, 3-No Trumps, which South doubled, nobody knows why. East, 6-Clubs, counting upon more spade strength than West possessed. South doubled, expecting to win two tricks in red suits.

The opening lead was South's top

THREE COUNTIANS SEEK $14,626 AS RESULT OF AUTO COLLISION OCT. 22

WILLIAMSPORT WOMAN NAMED AS DEFENDANT

George Reisinger, Wife and Daughter File Actions in Common Pleas Court

MANY EXPENSES LISTED

Motorist is Charged With Negligent Operation

Three suits asking a total of $14,626, based on an auto collision last Oct. 22 on Route 22 west of Circleville, were filed in common pleas court Friday by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Reisinger and their daughter, Doris, against Mrs. Lella M. Johnson, Williamsport.

The Reisingers reside on the Yanketown pike about one mile west of Grange Hall.

The petitions ask the wreck occurred about one-half mile east of Wardell's Tourist home. Mr. Reisinger says he suffered a broken knee cap, has been unable to walk. The injury will be permanent. His petition lists doctor bills at $250, hospital expenses $50, ambulance $10 and damages to his auto $125. He asks $7,500 for personal injuries.

Mrs. Reisinger suffered a fractured skull and severe bruises. Her petition lists doctor bills of $75, ambulance $10 and a hospital bill of $35. She asks $5,000 for personal injuries.

Doris Reisinger, who filed an action through her father, as next friend, asks $1,571. A doctor bill of $40 and dental bill of $31 are listed. Miss Reisinger suffered mouth injuries in the crash.

Mrs. Johnson is charged with negligent and reckless operation of her automobile.

The accident occurred seven months after the three men were killed aboard the U. S. S. Marblehead off San Diego in a similar explosion. At that time, a high officer of the cruiser stated at the board of inquiry:

"The history of every safety device we have written in blood. High explosive never is safe and every mishap is a lesson for future precautions."

Went to Spanish Shores

Captain Hinkamp said the Wyoming would proceed to San Diego Monday and sail for the east coast March 3. The ship was dispatched to Spain last year after the outbreak of the civil war there.

The Wyoming was engaged in an evacuation problem, one of the final phases of combined maneuvers of the army, navy and marine corps on the island.

The Wyoming was scheduled to return to the harbor today with part of the 4,000 men engaged in the maneuvers. The ship did not have gun turrets in use during the war games, since No. 3, 4 and 5 turrets were removed when the ship was demilitarized. Two decks were used for gun firing.

The accident happened a few minutes after 10 a. m. Thursday but the Wyoming did not arrive in the harbor until five hours later. Crowds lined the shore as ambulance boats transferred the victims to the Relief.

of six gunmen were loading a 40-pound shell in the breach. Private David Williams, with a ramrod in his hand, was directly behind the gun, when the explosion occurred. Behind him was a "powder man" with a 20-pound bag of powder for the charge. The powder did not explode, however, and the man staggered away with it. Williams received the full force of the blast. His right arm was torn off.

Captain Trumble was nearly decapitated, according to witnesses. Other marines watching the gun loading were bowled over.

The blast blew out parts of the bulkhead around the casemate. About 20 men were crowded in the small room, no more than ten by fourteen feet and seven feet high.

Twelve physicians worked all night in an effort to give relief to the injured men. Most of the seriously injured were unconscious.

Vice-Admiral William T. Tarrant, commanding the scouting force, of which the Wyoming, though a training ship, was a unit, named the naval court to hold the inquest aboard the Wyoming today.

The board of inquiry tomorrow will meet aboard the U. S. S. New York, flagship of the training squadron.

Liberty Cancelled

All shore liberty for officers and crew of the Wyoming was cancelled.

Naval officials refused to discuss the probable cause of the blast. However, when a similar disaster occurred 13 years ago aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi, killing 48 officers and men, the explosion was said to have been caused by burning particles from a previous discharge which ignited the powder from a fresh shell being inserted in the breach.

The accident occurred seven months after the three men were killed aboard the U. S. S. Marblehead off San Diego in a similar explosion. At that time, a high officer of the cruiser stated at the board of inquiry:

"The history of every safety device we have written in blood. High explosive never is safe and every mishap is a lesson for future precautions."

Neutrality seems to have the endorsement of practically all the munitions makers until it means foregoing the profits of war.

and fire insurance so go ahead—use any method at your command—but get them out. It is not fair to our loyal workers to allow them to remain in possession of the plant."

The plant has been closed by the strike since Wednesday.

One deputy sheriff, who refused to allow use of his name, said he had been fired at four times by a striker with a shotgun in an upper story of the plant. The United Press correspondent, who witnessed the battle from the start, saw no sign of firearms on either side. However, there was a constant bombardment of tear gas bombs, which spread gas upward toward the factory.

The white streamers poured from hundreds of windows shattered by the strikers. The men inside turned on the ventilation system and the blowers cleared much of the tear gas before the company turned off the electricity.
